MIRROR

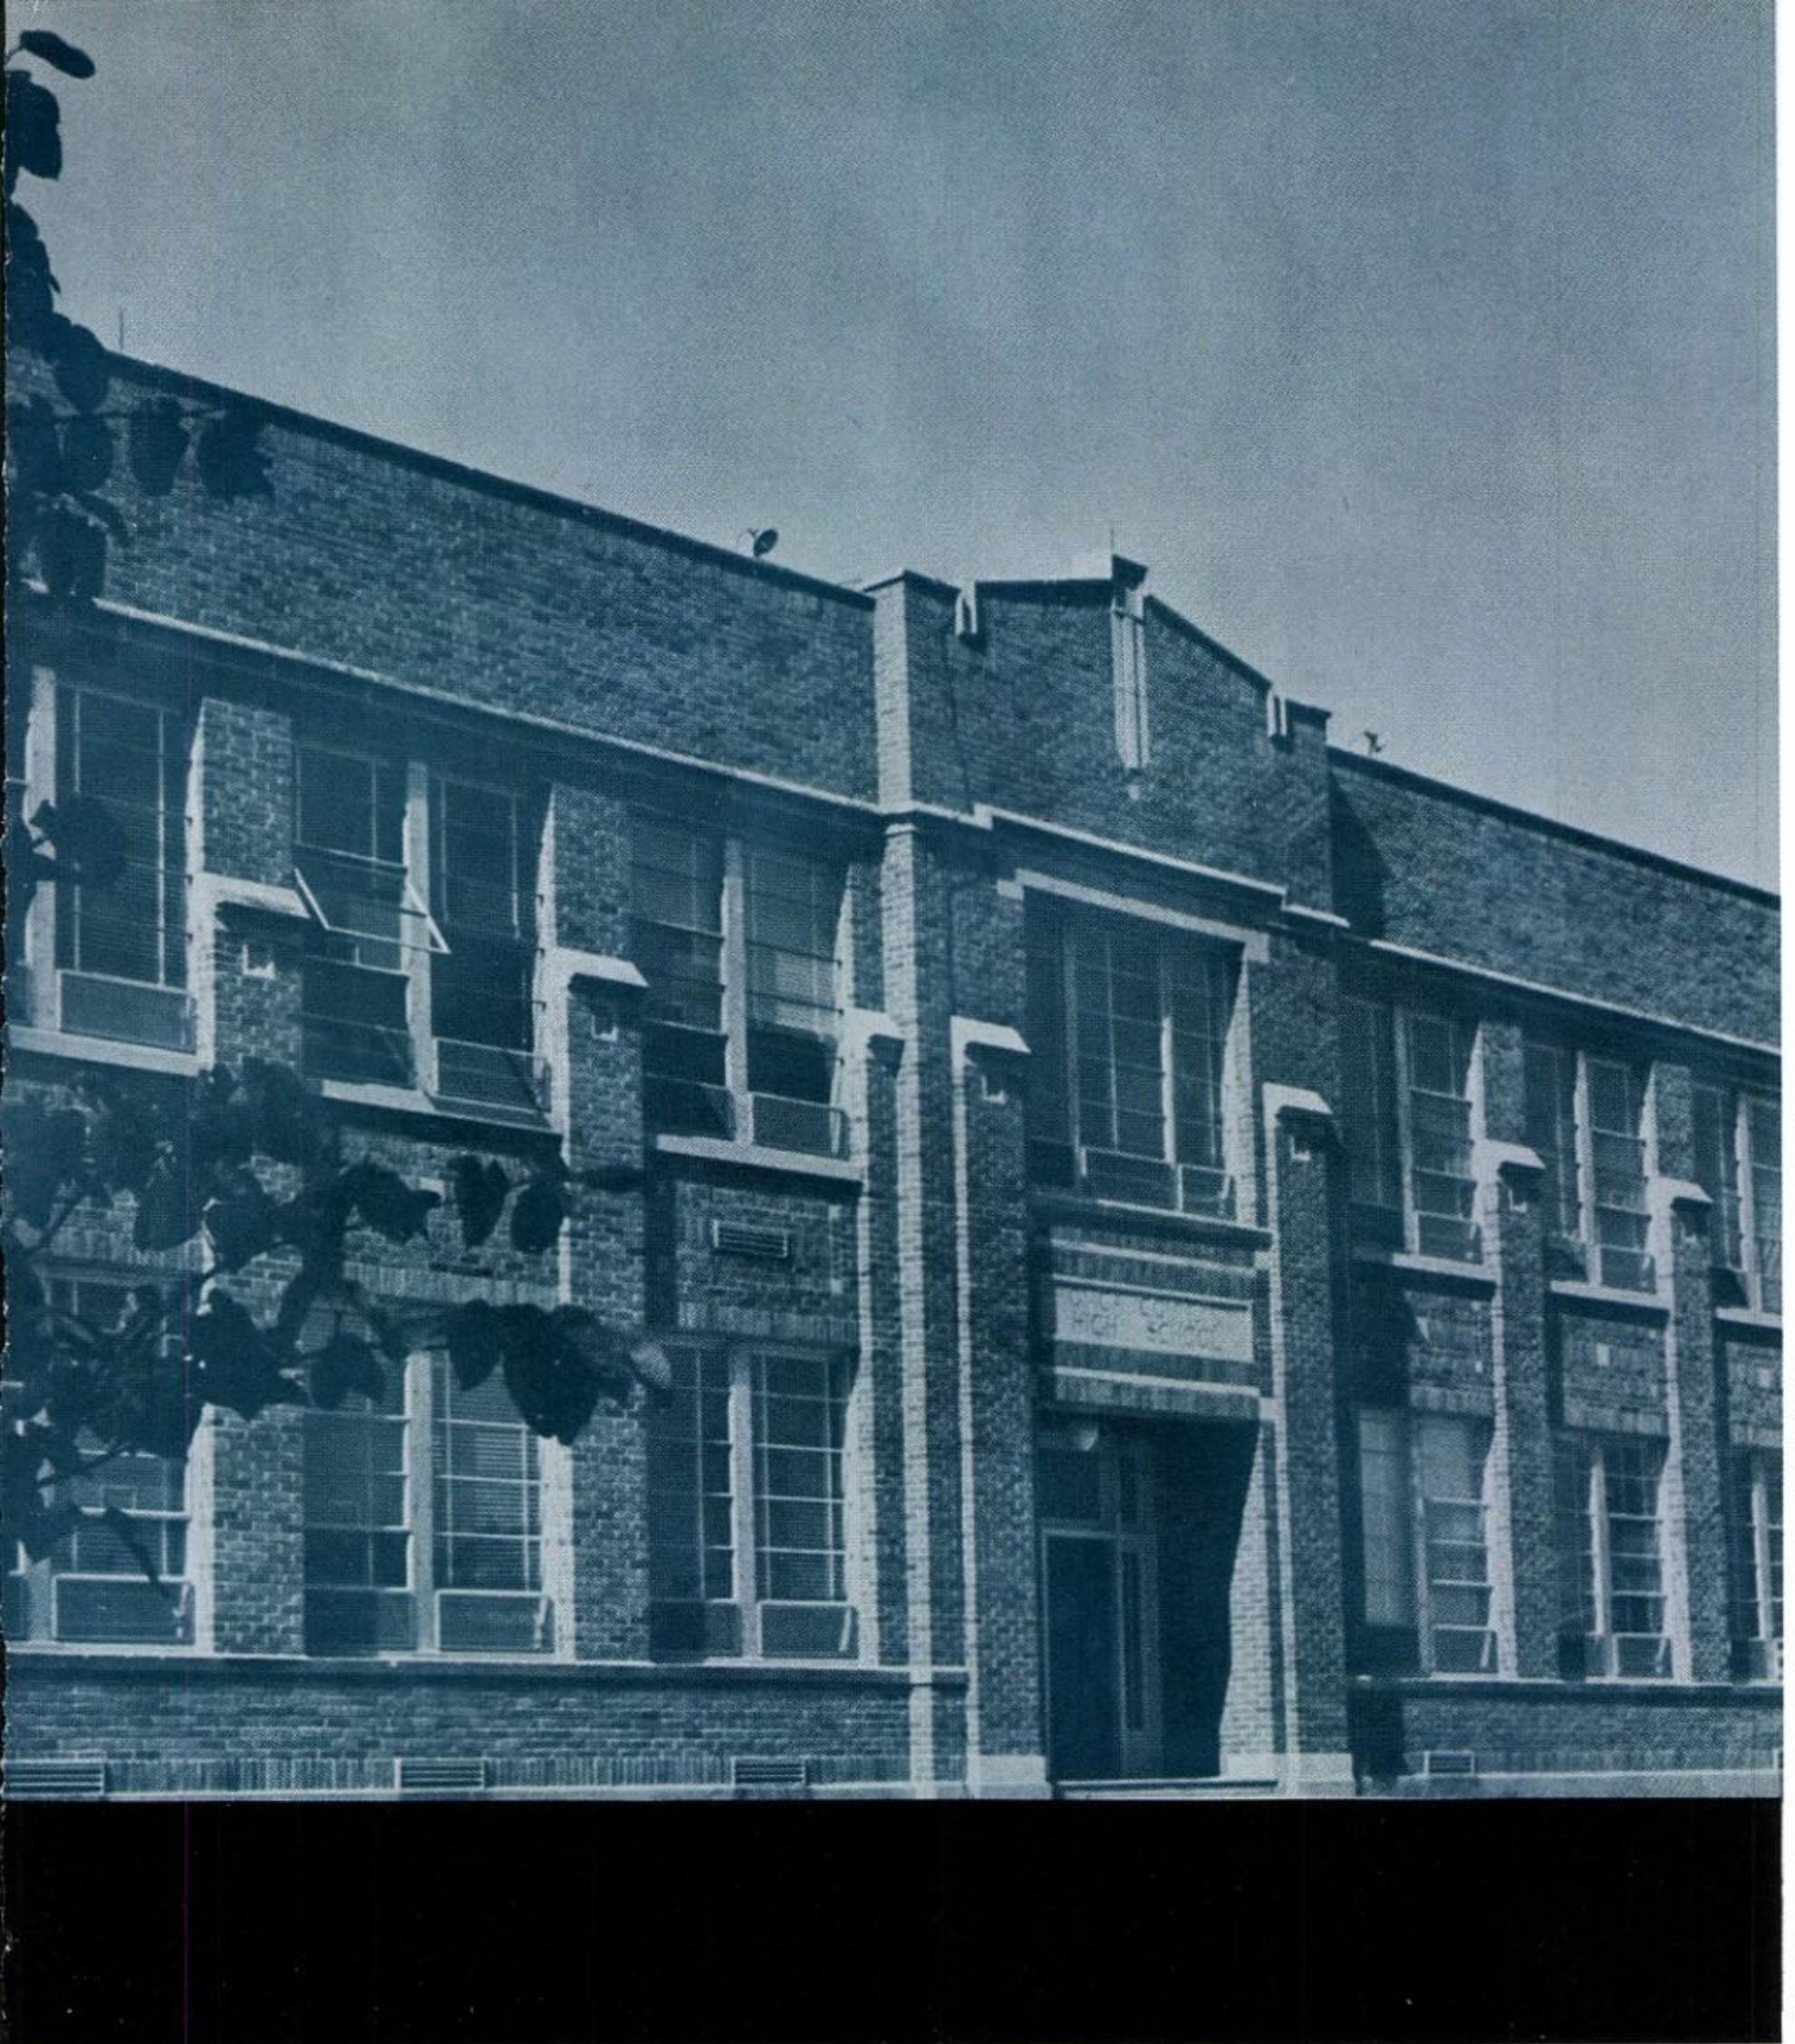

The image features a central horizontal black bar. To the left of this bar is a white rectangular box containing the year '1963'. To the right of the bar is the word 'MIRROR' in white capital letters. Above and below the bar, there are four sharp, black, triangular spikes pointing outwards. Additionally, there are three diamond shapes: two solid black diamonds and one hollow white diamond with a black outline. The overall design is minimalist and high-contrast.

Dedication

We, the Mirror staff of 1963, dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Kenneth R. Myler, the commerce teacher at Tonica High, in recognition of his fine teaching ability and patience. Mr. Myler is also the School Daze advisor and director of both the junior and senior plays as well as advisor for the student council and president of the P.T.A. Thus, we dedicate this yearbook to a man outstanding for his work both at Tonica High and in the community.

The Junior Class of '64 has had a full schedule this year. Their main project was the Prom and banquet. Many free periods were spent in the Ag. Shop working on the decorations.

Second, they presented the Junior Play. The class also put on a very successful chili supper in December, on which they made a sizeable profit.

Although this is the first year for the freshman, they seem very enthusiastic about school and extra-curricular activities. They have planned several projects such as Hobo Day and a class hayrack ride. They also initiated the idea of organizing a pep club to boost school spirit during the basketball season. We, as well as everybody, wish them the best of luck in the coming years.

ORGANIZATIONS

Mirror Staff

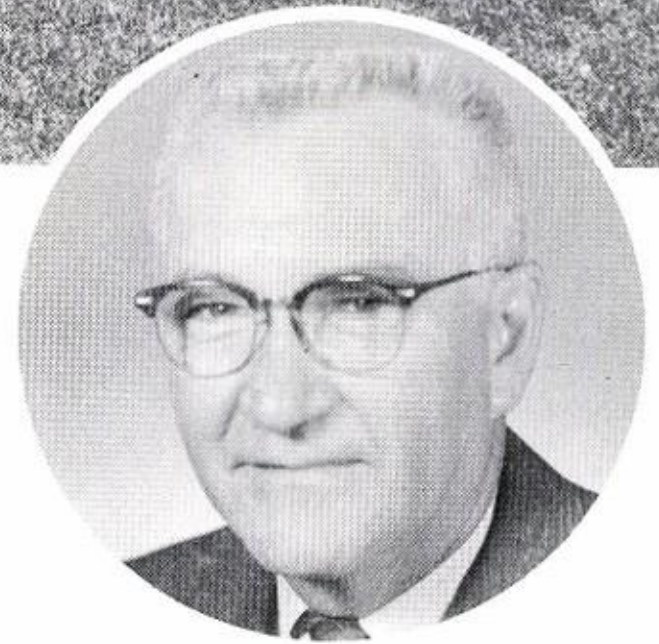

With cameras snapping and flash bulbs popping, we, the Mirror Staff of 1963, race to meet our deadlines. Although meeting a deadline can be quite a job, we enjoy doing it because we want one of the best yearbooks possible. We hope that you, the students of T.C.H.S., will enjoy this book now, and in years to come.

Let's get to work!

F.H.A. in Action

Striving to attain this year's goal: "Discovering one's value and worth to others," our F.H.A. girls sped through a year of activity. Some of the annual events sponsored by our F.H.A. Chapter include: F.H.A. and F.F.A. King and Queen Dance, serving at the F.F.A. banquet, and co-sponsoring the Easter Egg Hunt. Through this organization girls learn to improve themselves through service to others.

MARCHING BAND

The marching band is proud this year to be able to wear brand new navy blue uniforms which were purchased last year. Shown in the above picture is the band on Memorial Day of 1962. This was the first time they wore their uniforms.

This year, the marching band journeyed to Peoria and participated in the annual Bradley Band Day marching contest, winning second place in competition with twelve other units. They also performed in the Peoria Christmas Parade, held each year during Thanksgiving vacation.

Librarians

A librarian is a valuable asset to the rest of the student body. They find reading material for us, remind us of the dates books are due, collect fines and also keep the library neat and orderly. We, the Mirror Staff of 1963 thank their advisor, Mrs. Irvine, along with the librarians for the fine work they do.

The Tonica High School 1962 track team did well last year. The outstanding star was David Aschinger. At the Tri-County track meet, Dave won first place in the broad jump. He also broke the Tonica High School broad jump record of 19'2-1/2" by 11-1/2". We hope for a good season in 1963.

An abstract graphic design featuring five vertical lines of varying heights that create a series of peaks and valleys. A solid black horizontal bar spans the width of the page, intersecting these lines. To the left of this bar, the year '1963' is printed in a white box. To the right, the word 'ACTIVITIES' is printed in white on the black background. There are three diamond shapes: a solid black one in the upper valley, an outlined one to the right, and another solid black one in the lower valley.

THE CAST

Have some peanuts!

"Mountain Gal" is a very humorous hillbilly play about a girl who was an orphan and was being raised by a hillbilly family. While searching for their own lost, little girl, the Gordons find Deedee and decide to educate her. As the end of the play nears, Peggy (Deedee) is torn between the two families. At the last moment a letter arrives and everyone's problems are solved.

Junior Play

Gordon Warren, the student counselor at Pembroke High, returns to the fall semester of school only to find that the Board of Education has decided to add a woman counselor to their staff. When the new counselor, Jane Gardner, breezes in, Gordon takes an immediate dislike to her. A Temporary housing shortage leaves Jane with no roof overhead. This is solved by the domineering principal, Miss Entwhistle, as she has Jane move into Gordon's hallowed domain. In she comes--Lock, Stock, and Lipstick. The play comes to a whirlwind finish as our two counselors find solutions to their seemingly insurmountable problems.

Hurry, kids! Time's running out!

The Big Night!

The Mississippi

After a delicious supper at the Carousel Room in Spring Valley, the Seniors of '62 attended a prom, with the theme, "Moonlight on the Mississippi." One end of the new gym was decorated as a huge red and white paddle-wheel boat containing tables and chairs where the spectators could talk, watch the dancers, and sample the delicious punch and cookies. The dance floor was surrounded by blue crepe-paper ribbons. The other end of the gym held the Stanley Roberts Band. A multi-colored spotlight kept the musicians in the limelight. The doorway was hung with crepe ribbons which were drawn aside to form an entry-way onto the magical Mississippi wharf.

I could have danced all night!

Let's twist again!

Dances

The '62-'63 dances have provided us with many precious memories. Our school has been very busy putting on many dances including "The Homecoming Dance" and "The March of Dimes Benefit Dance" sponsored by our student council. The seniors sponsored the successful "Christmas Ball" and the "Halloween Dance." The juniors, of course, sponsored the big dance of the year, the Prom. The sophomores held a successful sock hop after the Hopkins basketball game, and the freshman held a square dance on February 23. These dances represent many hours of preparation and enjoyment for the school and community.

NOTED ARCHAEOLOGIST FINDS RECORDS OF CLASS OF 1963

It was revealed today that the marvelous archaeologist, Charlie F. Mstzpqrstuvbfmn, had uncovered an old and tattered diary of one of the members of the graduating class of 1963. It seems that he kept a record of every classmate's life. This brilliant person who kept the diary was JAMES BERNARDONI. We are greatly indebted to him for giving us this chance to find out what has happened to our old citizens of Tonica. These entries were dated January 6, 2020:

MARCIA FOLTY, after leaving good old THS, went on to make a name for herself. She became well-known as "Marvelous Marcy," best shot in the U. S. One afternoon, while practicing her trap shooting, she pointed the gun the wrong way and shot herself.

ANNA DUFFELL became a famous private detective. She was a fantastic private eye. Her secret weapon was her nose. She could smell criminals. One day she forgot her glasses and tripped and fell flat on her face, smashing in her notorious nose. She retired there and lived a quiet life.

PAUL COFOID used his great, unusual mental ability in every job he held after graduation. His first job was as an apple packer. From here he moved on up the ladder in his business. He held such important positions as: avocado packer, cherry packer, citrus fruit packer, egg packer, pear packer, and plum packer. At present he is unemployed and looking for another job in which he can use his great mental capacity.

RALPH COLE's claim to fame was in bakery goods. He decorated the holes in glazed doughnuts. It finally came to the point where he just couldn't continue--after a while, he actually saw the holes he was decorating! Tsk! Tsk! What a pity!

JAMES GOODBRED was a great scientist. He developed and patented the invention: "Goody's Great Eye-brow Grower." One afternoon in his lab while he was mixing up the secret formula, he added too much growing powder and was lost in the brush of all the eye-brows. No one has either seen or heard of him since.

LARRY PHELP's chief interest during high school was art. After graduation, he moved to Greenwich Village and became one of the "struggling artists" (you know, a beatnik). He was one of those "misunderstood people." He finally became so depressed that he drowned himself in a bucket of red paint.

MYRLE SARVER was a glass blower by profession. He lost his self-control one bleak afternoon, however, and blew a glass around himself. Reports from various sources say he was imprisoned there for 40 years before he died of suffocation. Wow! What lungs, n'est-cepas?

MARIAN OLSON was a famous masseuse. She was very popular among her men patients because of her unusual technique. One day one of the infuriated wives came to her parlor and gave Marian a massage. She was crippled for the rest of her life.

JIM EARLES met with a tragic end. The day after his third re-election as waterboy for a South American rebel force, he dropped the water bucket on his big toe and died of spinal injuries.

PAULA WALGENBACH became the first nurse on horseback of the Middle West. She was the victim of a broken heart when someone hid her Junior Nurses' Kit and ate all her candy pills.

JON BARNHART was destined to become a world-famous home economics instructor until he got hopelessly entwined in his favorite spaghetti recipe.

BOB CLARK won his claim to fame as a lecturer on baby care. Frustrated and distraught over his heavy schedule on his round-the-world lecture tour, he unexpectedly went mad and hung himself with a diaper.

JIM LOCK ended up teaching girls' P.E. in an exclusive girls' school out East. He's still out there--he's kept in wonderful shape by all the exercise he gets.

RUTH HILTABRAND rose to great heights in the world of business. She gained the high position of editor of the WALL-STREET JOURNAL. Shortly afterward, the JOURNAL folded up, however, and Ruth was destined to spend the rest of her days selling ties on street corners.

WAYNE LANCE was a star in the world of sports. He was world famous for his amazing track records. Poor Wayne lost out, though, for he broke his leg and they had to shoot him.

DAVE BECKER showed great talent as an ingenious inventor with his invention, instant water. Drop two tablets into a small saucepan, add two cups of cold tap water, and bring to a boil, stirring slowly. After extensive research, Dave also came up with an instant toothpaste. Drop a capsule in the mouth and in a moment it is filled with toothpaste. Unfortunately, Dave took too many, and he is still sudsing and sudsing and sudsing.

BARBARA MERTEL finally outgrew her nickname of "Shorty." Barb regretted it, though. She was up so high that she got buzzed by a low-flying jet and was the first bald member of the Class of '63.

MIKE PATTERSON won great acclaim as a top producer and director. He followed in the footsteps of Alfred Hitchcock. Each of his productions surpassed the one before in terror and horror. Mike's fabulous luck eventually ran out. While he was on the set one day, one of his trained monsters escaped. Mike did not.

GARY ROWE studied mechanics after he left TCHS, but he dropped this field in favor of another--ballet. Gary admired the grace and beauty of ballet so much that he worked and practiced until he was a great dancer. Gary's career only lasted twenty years. One day he lost control when he went into one of his amazing spins and zoomed up, up, up, --to float forever in endless space.

DALE VOGEL surprised everyone when he graduated from a school of beauty culture. Everyone flocked to his shop to have him style her hair. He was in such demand that he had to hire a whole crew of assistants. Dale remained a leader in his profession until his retirement in 2010. Shortly afterward, he passed away, but his legend will live for many years.

ELLEN KEITH became a famous stock car racer. She broke all previous records in her dangerous, daring races. Time and time again, she astonished the audiences with her nerves of steel. Ellen never had a crack-up all during her racing career. She still died fairly young, though, when her little sports car was smashed by a runaway tricycle.

BILL GINGERICH was the only member of the Class of '63 to ever be invited to the White House. His trained caterpillars, the talents of the twentieth century, delighted the President and First Lady. Bill happily managed the "Cute Cats" for quite a few years. After they were firmly established stars, however, the "Cats" fired Bill and hired a new manager. Bill was found hanging from a curtain rod by a piece of Kleenex the next day.
